Information We Collect from You

Account Information

To register a user account, we ask you to provide your login name, email address and create the password.

We use/store your email address:

- (a) to verify your identity when you log in to your account;
- (b) to contact you regarding your account or work of Tradelize (support emails), send emails with our newsletters, announcements, and other offers (marketing emails); and
- (c) to comply with our legal obligations. For more info, please refer to our AML/KYC Policy.

We store passwords secured against unauthorized access by using a password hashing function. We encourage you to create a strong password and avoid sharing with other persons for the safety of your account and funds.

To invite other persons to use Tradelize and receive access to certain paid features and services, you can send them a unique referral code created for your account in 'Partnership Program' page on Tradelize. We will process this unique code solely to provide you with incentives promised for inviting other persons to use Tradelize.

You will also be able to create subaccounts or unite with other users in groups to collectively decide on or manage your funds that are listed on Tradelize. Please note, that we do not carry responsibility for actions or dissemination of your information by other users. We encourage you to carefully choose partners who you trust your data.

Management of Funds

Tradelize will create your wallet with a public address, where you can deposit your funds in crypto and use them on Tradelize. To withdraw your funds from Tradelize wallet, you will have to provide a wallet address where you want your funds to be transferred.

You will be able to trade and analyze your Demo account, which means that you are not operating with real funds.

You can connect your accounts on third-party exchanges with your Tradelize account through the API keys for algorithmic trading. You will be able to use your trading history on Tradelize and third-party exchanges to analyze your trading patterns, trading statistics, including your absolute return, active return, risk rate, sharpe, sortino, max drawdown, amount of trades and trading volume, % of profitable traders, and max profit and loss per trade, and manage your asset portfolio throughout all connected exchanges. These stats apply both to your main and demo accounts.

Through Tradelize, you will be able to set automated asset management rules and settings and create portfolio strategies. You can then sell the access to the strategies to other users, as well as charge the users for mirroring your asset management patterns.

Ratings and Performance Index

Based on the information provided, Tradelize will calculate your monthly- and 24h- profit/loss rate, as well as Monthly Risk rate. A monthly risk rate is counted according to your trading volume, standard deviation, sortino, and the amount of your trading orders and offers.

If you choose so, you will be included in the Tradelize user trading top rating, which is formed based on users' monthly and 24H P/L and monthly risk rates. Other users will see these stats in comparison with other users, along with your login name and profile photo. If they become interested, they can contact you to collaborate.

You can also choose to participate in Tradelize ratings of the most successful paid channels, strategies, and mirroring accounts. In such a case, other users will be able to see how your trading strategies and patterns are successful/profitable in comparing to other traders.

Tradelize will assign you trading performance index, which is counted from one (1) to five (5) points and based on your aggregate score of all your trading statistics and patterns, including on metrics mentioned in 'Management of Funds' Section and your monthly profit/loss proportion, and profit for the whole period of using Tradelize. You can choose to make your performance index public if you want so.

Public Profile

Each Tradelize user has own public profile, which is accessible by other users. The users can see your login name, profile photo, the date of joining Tradelize, a number of your followers and users you follow, your brief bio, P/L rate, performance index, and your portfolio and trading statistics.

You can also publish there your offers for a paid channel, mirroring, and strategies for sale.
